Who'd steal a book? Many, Auntie learns, and she's mad

By AUNT LIZ
Stealing something is a great sport in this world. It isn't anything new to this age, but it is getting a little more refined.

Anyone can break into a house or a store and walk off with things, but if you're anything but a thief, you'll be asked because it is a recognized bargain.

Somehow it was the check that did it. The guy got caught and the police found the check in his wallet. It had not been cashed so he was out nothing except for a nice present for his wife.

Now such things are hitting our very best libraries, which are mainly college ones. No school can exist without a good library and they work hard at building them up.

In every day dealings, libraries, no matter what kind they are, public or school, books vanish. For the most part it is because people misplace them and forget to return them.

I've done it myself and once paid a fine that practically covered the cost of a dumb mystery. College kids, though, are more apt to purposely keep a book forever which saves them having to buy something they must need.

What has now happened is that people who have a great knowledge that is necessary for what they are doing, are looking the really rare books from here and there.

One guy got away with about 400 such things that he managed to sell off to unsuspecting rare book dealers because he could remove all traces of where they came from.

He finally got caught up at Oberlin college and is now reading like mad from some prison library.

You have to give the guy credit. He knew what was what and where.

Also honored were former wardens of the local chapter. Mrs. Budd Young, worth matron, recognized her mother, Mrs. Edith Kessler, who served the longest of warder here.

Mrs. Carl V. Ellis was honored for being the chapter organist for 18 years. Max Caywood presented 25-year membership pins to Mrs. Caywood, a former matron, and to Alfred Parkinson, 3rd, who is also a 25-year member Richard Lodge 201, F&AM.

Another 25-year member, Mrs. John Hamilton, lives in Garrett, Ind.

Pressure

12th grade quarterback says
it comes from home and from pupils (who want winner)
but only slightly from school

RODNEY HAMPTON

One who measures what he says before he says it, and apparently takes that approach to his other aims in life, usually makes a good engineer.

And if that's the case here, Rodney Hampton, a 12th grader who plays quarterback for the so far unbeaten Big Red, ought to be a howling success.

He knows what he's about and he thinks before he says what he thinks.

And, with a little prodding, he is wont to talk about pressure.

Pressure among teenagers is a common reason often offered for why they go wrong. The drug scene is constructed of flats made of pressures. Pressures by peers, pressures by parents, pressures by the community, pressures by the need, not to say the desire, to excel.

Rodney Hampton knows what pressure is all about. And he characterizes it in his precise way, methodically, and rationally.

"I get lots of pressure from my Mom to excel academically. I wouldn't want it otherwise. My grandparents apply some, too, but it's not so obvious."

There's some pressure in the school to excel academically, but in my case I haven't had much of it because my grades haven't fallen. But if I were to get a C, I'd get static at school long before I got it at home. I will say this for our coaches: they — all of them, in every sport in which I've participated — emphasize grades and school work before athletics. Which is how it should be.

"I felt a lot of pressure in my sophomore year. I was playing where an older, more experienced player had always been and the squad wondered if I could cut it there, there were no bones about it. The players simply figured that the older player ought to be there and who was this smart alek (he didn't say 'alek') kid who was taking that place?"

"But I enjoy pressure. I like it when the game is tied and the clock is running down. Or when we're not so far behind that a reasonable effort can't win."

Pressure is the name of the game. Those who can't stand up to it go to the showers early.

Is there pressure on the team this season?

"No more than usual, I suspect, but perhaps some, because we've got 12 players who've been together a long time and everybody said they'd be hot stuff one day and that hasn't come yet. But this is our year and we're going to win 'em all."

Is there a pecking order among players?

"Sure, to some extent. A player who's been around for four years is expected to know more about the game and how to play it than a kid who's brand new or who's had only one or two years on the team. That's why the seniors automatically take what they think is theirs by right and expect the best assignments and the most dependence will be placed on them. But sometimes there's a younger player who shows the older guys what it's all about and shows them he can do the job. So we've got Spanky."

"Yes, sir, Scott Ryman. He does it all and he's a fine player and he's not going to graduate after this season. I just wish we had him a lot sooner."

He plays three sports, football in the autumn, basketball in the winter, baseball in the spring. "I've heard it said that Bellville and Butler and Shelby are football towns, Plymouth and Shiloh are basketball towns, maybe Willard, but for only the last 10 years. Nobody talks about baseball, yet if you consider how well or how poorly Plymouth teams have done over the last 10 years, you've got to come up with the obvious answer that Plymouth is a baseball town, and so is Shelby, really. It may be too soon to say that Willard is a basketball town. But what difference does it make, so long as you win?"

Is there pressure to win? "Yes, sir. The pupils in the high school want to win so badly they can taste it. Notably in the band — of course, you know I'm a member of the band — and there's where you'll find the enthusiasm for the team to win, especially at the pep rallies. Just let us string a couple more victories together and you'll see the pupils turn out. And you'll see other people turn out. That's what they want, is a winner. Just try to buy a ticket at the door to see Willard play basketball."

How much pressure is self conflicted?

He flashes that sheepish grin for which he is famous.

"Of course there's a lot of it that's self-applied. Take me, for instance. I'm carrying a home economics course because my family thinks it will be good for me, but it's no Mickey Mouse course. And the rest of what I'm taking isn't either."

"I'm taking English IV, advanced mathematics, which means trigonometry, chemistry, problems of democracy and physical education as well. They're not Mickey Mouse courses."

How much pressure comes from the school staff independent of the coaching group?

"The new principal doesn't seem to care much about athletics, he's interested in academic achievement and I think you'll see some good records along that line. If I had my choice, what I'd choose is high academics and a strong sports program that produces more winners than losers on a consistent basis. Unless we can make things turn around, we won't reach a 500 level in football or basketball for a long, long time, maybe when I've got a gray beard."

You'll find his name in the honor roll and among the musicians who excel in the Ohio Music Educators' association contests each spring. He's a percussionist. A pretty fair Ohio quarterback of some years back was an outstanding musician in high school and college and played in the band in both places. He was even concert master of the Northwestern university band. His name is Otto Graham.

Is there family pressure?

"Not to speak of my father and my uncles played for Plymouth. My father graduated in 1953 and played some ball here. My uncles Larry, Marty and Mickey (Darrell) played football, and other sports. My uncle Bob was a good basketball player. I've got some cousins, the children of my aunt, the former Patricia Hampton, now Mrs. Powers at Shiloh, who're outstanding in football. One of them is Dave Powers, already big as a horse, and he's only in the eighth grade."

When Firelands conference defenders apply pressure to the Big Red offense, Rodney Hampton knows what he means. He knows what to do about it. And he's willing to stake his reputation that he'll do it successfully.

far this season. After building a two touchdown lead against South Central in the opener, Northmor went into the dumper before a strong

Trojan come back.

Last week, in league play,

the Knights fell to Fredericktown, a co-favorite with

Crescent for the MOC title.

The Freddie completely buffaloed Northmor after a scoreless first period simply poored it on.

Twelve letterman graduated in June. The new coach, a 1975 alumnus of

Highland High school, replaces Bob Jenne. O'Quinn was defensive coordinator at

North Newton, Ind., High school for the last four seasons.

It was propitious for Coach

Jenne to quit, because his son, Paul, the quarterback, was All-Ohio as a place kicker.

The returning lettermen have some size. These include George Boyle, a center,

Joe Ruhl, a guard, each of whom scales 190 pounds;

Tim Bostick, the fullback,

who weighs 160, and Ed

Gardner who weighs 175.

The quarterback, Rick

Liberti, an 11th grader weighs 160.

The Knights ran split backs and also out of the I formation on offense and show 5-2, 4-4 and 4-3 defenses with so far a number of variations.

Plymouth is expected to be at full strength and needs to improve its passing game, which was supposed to be its forte at the beginning of the season, and to take some of the pressure off Mike Mc-Kenzie. There is no doubt that Richard Cunningham

and Steve Jamieson can do it if they are given the opportunity.

Directions to Northmor:

Proceed via Route 96 and 598 to Route 61, Gallion, continue to Sims Fertilizer,

turn left (east) to Route 19,

cross it to school.

The crossroads a short way and can be seen.

Bible classes allowed if conditions met

An "accommodation" of North Richland County Council for Christian Education was voted by Plymouth Board of Education Monday night. Released time will be allowed for religious classes during the school day, providing at least 50 per cent of pupils in the first six grades participate in the program and that the council provides the school with the name of its liability insurance for the 1983-84 school year.

The Plymouth classes will be in United Methodist church. Shish pupils will go to Mt. Hope Lutheran church.

School enrollment is up slightly from last year. As of Thursday there is a total of 1,237 pupils. The high school has 389, the Shish building has 525 and Plymouth Elementary school has 223.

Two bus bids were accepted. The chassis will be purchased from Hyster's Inc., Willard, for $151,465.54. The body will come from SS Coach Sales, Inc., Lexington, for $6,534.

Approval was given to accept Jon Tash as a tuition pupil from the Willard district.

The board agreed that donations for various funds may be accepted any time. A donation from the Thomas Kinn Farm for $25 to be used for a scholarship for the FFA camp was accepted.

First Buckeye bank has given $150 to be divided four ways. The high school annual and student council will receive $50 and the National Honor society and athletic fund $25, each.

SOME PEOPLE RETIRE WITH MORE THAN JUST A GOLD WATCH.

You work hard all your life and what do you get?

Well, depending on where you work, you could get cancer. Asbestos has been proven to cause cancer. Certain toxic chemicals like formaldehyde and freon are being investigated. If you've worked with radioactive particles or even worked near them, your risk is greater.

And even if you've worked nowhere hazardous, it wouldn't hurt to get a checkup. Because the incidence of cancer after the age of 45 to 50 increases rapidly.

Over the next several years the American Cancer Society will be conducting more research into certain lifestyles and exposures which could increase cancer mortality.

So know the risks. Don't smoke. Watch what you eat and drink. Look for the warning signs of cancer. And retire not only with a gold ticker. But a healthy one, also.

How you live may save your life.
