Concealed resources: why not use 'em?

The resources of a community are often

Not intentionally, save in a few cases. But all the same concealed.

The ability to teach, for one. There are never enough good teachers to go around. Those who can teach, especially the young and the very young, are worth their weight in diamonds.

The ability to lead, for another. There are never enough good leaders to go around. Those who can lead anybody, particularly those above school age, are worth their weight in gold and diamonds, not to mention rubies and smeralds.

The ability to recount one's experience so that others can learn valuable lessons from #, for a third. Nobody can ever learn too much. Experience is a better teacher than a textbook, although the writers of textbooks will insist that what they write is based on experience. Whose? And how much did it earn?

The ability to draw upon one's friend-ships to obtain the participation of useful persons for the common good, at no cost to anybody save time and sweat, for a fourth. The man whom we allowed to die in 1949 without telling him how important he was to us was wont to say, "It's less a matter of what you know than of whom you know and how well you know him."

We've learned, in nearly 30 years hereabouts, that there are some who can teach but are not teaching. There are some who can lead but are not leading. There are some who can propound lessons from their experiences but are not propounding. There are some who know others whose reservoirs of friendship are untapped.

The Rev. Mr. Atkins, the departing Lutheran minister, put a finger on it a few Sundays ago: we are scared.

What are we scared of? We are afraid, he said, that by allowing others to do their thing, we will be lost or buried or shoved

But Ronald Atkins was a darned sight smarter than most who have passed by here. He read the facts and he spoke them as he saw them. To his great credit, of course.

A wise man once said, "If what you plan to say can be said better by another, don't say it. If what you plan to do can be done better by another, don't do it. If what you plan to lead can be led better by another, don't lead it. But chamfer your edge so that whatever you say, or do, or lead, or whatever, is just a whit better than anyone else, make yourself indispensable to the needs at hand, and you will be happy, you will leave a mark upon the sands of time and you will please your neighbors."

Isn't it silly that we go on day after day without asking those who can to do. Why aren't they doing? They haven't been asked. And when they do perform, they aren't thanked, or appreciated, or remembered when it comes time to hand out credit.

Most of it is free.

It is "Save, save, save, everything your kids do through school."
Not long ago I was looking through desk drawers, which is a job since we have four good sized ones, (Ed. note: Cronn now, it's more like 14t), and found all sorts of things like old grade cards, certificates for achievement, even an autobiography one wrote in high school for an English class. A labor of love, with respect

This sesquicentennial edition represents the best efforts of The Advertiser in presenting a clear and responsible account of 150 years of the village's history.

It was planned to be a history in three parts: what appened, what people did over 150 years, and who

We have always believed that to study and/or write history, one should always ask "why?"

If history is to teach lessons, its student must al-ways inquire why an event occurred, why a man or woman did what he or she did, or didn't do, why people behaved or failed to behave in their own best inter-

So far as we have been able, that is what we have done in this edition.

Although most of the work was done by the editor and his wife, special thanks are due many people for their kind and willing assistance: State Sen. Don J. Peass, Rep. Richard M. Christiansen, Rep. Charles A. Mosher, Mrs. Peyton W. Thomas, Miss Florence Danner, David H. Bachrach, John Bradford, William P. Day, Carl V. Ellis, Mrs. Kenneth V. Myers, Thurman R. Ford, Nathaniel Spear, Jr., and others.

The Advertiser's loyal staff, Donald H. Newton, Paul A. Zipfel, Donald E. Williams and Mrs. Samuel Carter, were faithful in carrying out the plans of the editor.

Special thanks are due A. L. Paddock, 3rd, for his
