

The cemetery: volunteers helped out!

That it is untoward for anyone to expect that the burial grounds shall habitually, on Memorial day, be in first class order, the grass mowed and trimmed, the place looking as though no one ever uses it, should be apparent to everyone.

Nevertheless, we, all of us, veteran and non-veteran, mourner of soldier or civilian, expect the cemetery to be in first class order and we raise the devil if it isn't.

The sexton struggled manfully with the problem this year. He had no control over the weather. Nor did anybody else. Yet he would have been blamed if the cemetery had not shown the result of some volunteer efforts, which he acknowledges elsewhere here today, to put the community's best foot forward on a day when outsiders come here, perhaps for the only time during the year.

That the volunteers stepped forward with their labor and their chattels speaks well for them and the community.

It does not speak well for the community that would carp and criticize if the grass had not been mowed, the weeds not trimmed, the place not policed up.

That whistle: Raucous or not, we need it

Those whose ears are attuned to the dulcet notes of the scale may from time to time take justifiable offense that the whistle that sounds every morning five days a week at 6:55 a.m. and at 7 a.m. grates on the ears.

It does that, despite the claims to the contrary made for so many years, until her death fairly recently, by Miss Nellie Pearl Edler, who for the better part of half a century listened for that whistle and governed her day by it.

If the meeting set for today should result in an adverse decision by those to whom the Plymouth Locomotive Works has been offered for sale, the whistle won't sound any more.

And, whether raucous, abrasive, dissonant or atonal, that it shall henceforward remain silent is a dose of medicine that we find all too hard to get down.

We have said before that we think there has been insufficient disclosure of the prospects and record of manufacture of products that have commanded the respect of the marketplace for all of this century and before an insufficient time for prospective buyers, who dwell in what the yuppies are wont to call the slow lane, to grasp all the ramifications of the offer.

And we daresay there are some who live here whose only connection with Plymouth Locomotive Works, Inc., is that they are roused five days a week by the sound of its whistle, summoning its workers to their duties at 6:55 and 7 a.m., and sending them home at 3:30 p.m. would be glad to have the opportunity to invest in the company under the same terms and conditions as the employees, should it come down to that.

If the employees in their wisdom and from their experience think the proposition is too big for them, perhaps they will consider "going public" with the proposal.

Plymouth simply cannot afford to lose its only industry.

Mr. Wilson stood manfully three generations ago and fought for open covenants openly arrived at.

We can hope for no less here and now. The citizens of Plymouth will welcome the opportunity to consider the proposal on the same terms as the employees.

To be Wayne county superintendent — Staggs resigns as school head

Douglas R. Staggs, superintendent of Plymouth schools, resigned Tuesday night to become superintendent of Wayne county system, a 12,000-pupil combine of seven schools districts with headquarters in Wooster. The 39-year-old educator will move his family there as soon as housing can be settled upon. He reckons that his son, Jeffrey, who will be an 11th grader in August, may start the 1986-87 year here. Mrs. Staggs, a teacher in South Central district, is expected to resign there. Their elder child, Kristina, will be graduated by Plymouth High school and enter Ashland college.

Villager cleared of charges in drug case

A 42 West High street resident accused of involvement in a cocaine sales ring has been freed of all charges. He is Esteban (Steve) Lopez, who was arrested Apr. 7 and accused of cocaine trafficking, one of eight persons nabbed by Richland county, Mansfield, and federal Drug Enforcement administration officers.

His bond at Akron, where he was arraigned, was reduced to $5,000 from $50,000 when prosecutors began to see holes in their case. Patrick Foley, assistant U.S. attorney at Toledo, said "ultimately, we concluded we didn't have enough evidence against Lopez." His brother, Olivero Arrendonado, 655 Spangler avenue, Willard, remains a prime suspect. Charges were filed against him May 15 in U.S. District court at Toledo. These derive from incidents of Mar. 31, when he was apprehended with 1 1/4 ounces of cocaine, and of Apr. 9, when he allegedly was in possession of eight ounces of cocaine.

ERRATUM

Mrs. Alice Thornberry's suit against Philip Beverly alleges she "had to resign" as police dispatcher, not that she was "dismissed," as stated in The Advertiser last week.

There was no intention to denigrate her service nor reason for terminating it.

Widow sues Clark estate for $200,000

The estate of a long-time Shiloh farmer is defendant in a suit for $200,000 laid by his widow in Richland county common pleas court.

Bernice L. Clark, 80, Columbus, widow of Nyle J. Clark, then of 23 West Main street, Shelby, but long of Bloominggrove township east of Shiloh, where he served as trustee, seeks cancellation of their pre-nuptial agreement and $200,000 in damages. He died in November, 1985.

She demands the money to compensate her for marriage expenses, including cost of support of her husband during their marriage, medical expenses he allegedly required her to pay and other costs. She claims she signed the pre-nuptial agreement under pressure and asks that it be nullified. The agreement limits her to one year of residency in their house.

Staggs came here as administrative assistant to Supt. John Fazzini in 1977 from Mapleton district. He previously taught in Centerburg district. He is an alumnus of Eastern Kentucky University of Richmond, Ky., with a master's degree from Bowling Green State university. The Staggs live at 328 Trux street, in a house they own.

It is the intention of the board of education to open the vacancy to candidates of a broad spectrum but not to exclude those of the staff who may be qualified to succeed Staggs.

Muffins great for old teacher!

By AUNT LIZ
Graduation and class reunions, it's that time again!
Happiness seems to be everywhere.
That is a large, fat lie.
New graduates for the most part are kind of panic-stricken to realize that they now have to face the world on their own. I know; once it hit me.
Somehow it does work out. Try a day at a time and hope for the best. Just about everyone does have a family to back him up, and families will. They are the lucky ones, but then there are those whose parents say "Now you're on your own."
I have seen this happen. Once they get their kids even through high school, they are finished. They are the ones about whom laws should be made not to let them have children.
I remember one bright high school graduate who should have gone on to greater things because it was there. His parents were honest about it all and simply explained that they would have to give up their boat and their weekend fishing jaunts and a few other little pastimes in order to send him on to school.
One day he kicked the boat in the back yard and said "The heck with it," and left.
Sure, he is getting along very nicely today with a job and a nice family, but he might have been a really bright star which our country needs to need.

Then a new graduate will be so glad to be out from under it all and memories will be great. It is amazing how fast one can forget under it all and memories will be great. It is amazing how fast one can forget under it all and memories will be great. It is amazing how fast one can forget all the really miserable little things and frustrations that high school and even college can bring on.

Let us face cold hard facts: if an honest survey were ever made about how a high school graduate feels about what a great time it all was, the answer would be something like a million minus zero.
High school is not that much fun.
Give it about 10 years and you go back to a reunion, which is fun, and only the funny good things get remembered.
Any teacher who is invited should feel flattered, because then the kids realized that was a good one.
They were the ones who were hard and made you work like a beaver and whom you hated. That's what good teaching is all about. Everyone forgets the ones he can con.
And the longer you are out of school, the better the good guys look. This is a proven historical fact that no one should ever forget.
If you should have a little lapse of memory, you can brew up something in honor of your most favorite teacher.
And if they still live close by, take this as a little present.
It's a new version of muffins. To me, anyway.
In one bowl mix a little salt with two cups of flour and three teaspoons of baking powder. Set aside.
In another bowl combine a fourth of a cup of melted shortening with a fourth of a cup of honey, a beaten egg and a cup of milk.

All summer long it'll keep you cool.

The add-on electric heat pump.
In the summer, it becomes the central air conditioner you've been looking for. To keep your house cool and comfortable.
And, in the winter, it will work with any furnace to help heat the house and save on heating bills.
So, for year-round comfort, call us about the reliable add-on electric heat pump.
We're making sure you can get the most out of life.

Strategy backfires

Two out single in 7th ousts Red

The strategy backfired. Steve Hall was working on a no-hitter with one down in the seventh against Seneca East at Old Fort Friday. Ned Walliser, the Tiger catcher, singled to center to break the no-hitter. He stole second after Hall fanned his opponent, Tim Bowerman. With the count one ball and one strike on Tom Welling, Coach David P. Dunn called for time. A defensive conference at the mound ensued. The strategy was to issue an automatic base on balls to Welling to set up a force at each base and to face, Sam Mahl, who had gone down twice swinging. Mahl hit the third pitch through the box to center field and Walliser ran home from second with the only run of the game.

Each pitcher allowed two hits. Hall fanned 12, Bowerman 11. Hall issued two passes, Bowerman one.

Plymouth had a golden opportunity in the opening inning. After Jamie Brown struck out, Steve Hall walked and went to second on a passed ball. Troy Keene struck a hit to short center off the handle of his bat. Coach Dunn chose to play it safe and held Hall at third, with only one out.

But Jason Robinson and Jeff Staggs bounced out to third base. In the fourth, after Keene lined out to the pitcher, Jason Robinson singled and stole second. Staggs walked. But Chuck Koease and Terry Hall went down swinging.

Hall, meanwhile, was going along without difficulty.

He walked Welling with one gone in the fifth, then fanned Mahl and got Steve Skeel on a fly to right.

In the Seneca East sixth, Chris Niedermeier fanned. The strike out pitch eluded the catcher and skittered under the series so Keene could not throw out the runner.

Jeff Cook bounced to second short and a double play wiped out Niedermeier. Marty Shank fanned.

Hall pitches Plymouth to win over St. Joseph's, 8 to 3

Steve Hall pitched Plymouth to an 8 to 3 victory over St. Joseph's of Fremont in the district semifinals at Old Fort May 20.

Hall got strong support from Jamie Brown, who went two-for-five, one of them a double to lead off in the third, and Troy Keene, who knocked in the first run with the first of his two safeties.

Hall gave up just six safeties, struck out 13 Crimmon Strunks and walked just two of the Fremonters.

His opponent, Kevin Yockley, billed as the best young pitcher in Sandusky county, was less effective.

Plymouth combed him for eight hits. He struck out seven and issued seven passes.

The Big Red drew first blood in the opening frame.

Brown walked, so did Hall, whereupon Keene's single scored Brown.

The Crimmon Strunks got two in the third.

Brett Paulica walked and, after one was out, Brad Young was safe on Keene's error. With two out, Tony Lupica singled to score two.

Plymouth bounced right back with two of its own.

Brown led off with a double, Hall singled, scoring Brown. Keene singled, and when Jeff Staggs was safe, Hall ran home.

The Strunks got one in the sixth when Ryan Gabel walked, Tim Wolff and Jeff Radzied singled and Gabel scored.

The Big Red broke it open in the bottom of the sixth.

Rod Reed hit safely, Terry Hall walked, Chuck Koease walked, Charles Beverly singled to score two and Brown singled to score two more.

Old soldier parades one more time; his name is Gatling

An old soldier responded to the colors again here Monday.

He — it is presumed to be machine — was born in 1886, in the manufactory, Colt Patent Fire Arms Mfg. Co., Hartford, Conn., that under contract with the Army produced the Gatling gun, under license of Dr. Richard Jordan Gatling, a North Carolinian who invented the weapon in 1861 and obtained a patent for it Sept. 4, 1862. Whereupon he sold 12 guns to Gen. Benjamin Butler, G.A.R. for $1,000 apiece. They were used in 1863 during the siege of Petersburg, mostly by the 65th Massachusetts Volunteers, in which Charles F. P. Paddock, Jr., grandfather of the editor of The Advertiser, was a soldier.

How this Gatling gun fell into the possession of Ebbett Fox, American Legion, about 1922 is obscure.

Research has shown this model of the weapon went out of production after the Spanish-American War of 1898-99. It stood in Greenlawn cemetery for nearly 44 years.

At the request of village council, Stanley E. Condon, then residing at 109 Plymouth street, an engineer with AMP Corp., Shelby, an amateur gunsmith and weapons specialist, undertook to refurbish it.

He accomplished restoration to about 90 or 95 percent of its original condition. It could not be fired, even after eight years of now-and-again labor, as he could afford the time, on the weapon by Condon, who now lives in New Albany, near Columbus.

The weapon was returned to the cemetery in that state in 1961. It was immediately thereafter taken to the police station by the late, Robert L. Meiser, then police chief, much to Condon's chagrin.

About 18 months ago, some members of the local Legion post determined to restore the gun further. William C. Enderby, an octogenarian veteran of World War II who is a life member of the post, and William D. Hill spearheaded the activity. About $400 of Legion and its auxiliary funds and a considerable amount of services contributed by Plymouth Locomotive Works, Inc., employee, on company time, resulted in its appearance in the holiday parade Monday.

The weapon has 10 barrels, firing cal. 30 ammunition. It weighs over 350 pounds. It operates by turning a crank on the right side of the gun. This rotates the barrels so that a new one is shouted into place in the breech with each rotation of the handle's turn. Bullets are fed from a vertical clip.

The Gatling gun was the first piece of ordnance issued by the government to the "reserve" service organization. A 37-mm. anti-tank gun, used in the early days of World War II, generally ineffective against German armor despite the fact it fired armor-piercing, high explosive and canister shells, now stands in front of the Legion hall at 112 Trux street.

Gatling fell ill of smallpox and in 1850 attended Ohio Medical college. He was accredited to practice medicine.

He became interested in improvement of weaponry and by 1861 he developed the rapid-fire machine gun that bears his name.

The prototype was a single barrel with a rotary chamber. He ultimately raised enough money to build 13 guns. Before they were built, the factory was destroyed by fire. In the meantime, the improved self-contained brass cartridge, which contained both propellant and bullet, had been developed, so Gatling redesigned his gun.

By May, 1863, the 13 rim-fire Gatlings had been manufactured. But since it used the new improved ammunition, the Army insisted on more testing.

The chief of ordnance, J. W. Ripley, was fighting to standardize munitions to ease his supply problems.

In September of 1864, a new chief of ordnance, Alexander B. Dyer, was appointed. He had encouraged Gatling from the beginning and he realized the importance of a machine gun that, fired by one man, could equal the firepower of 100 riflemen.

In 1865, Gatling designed, built and tested several new guns, weapons that eliminated the need for the cart-ridden carrying sleeve, using a long stroke breech system. When powered externally, the improved Gatling gun could deliver 3,000 rounds a minute. In 1866, the Army ordered 100 new models, the first officially adopted by any army in the world. Modifications to this weapon, including the gun that appeared in Monday's parade, continued until the weapon was declared obsolete in 1899.

It was used by U.S. forces in the invasion of the Philippines in 1901, but not thereafter.

 CARD OF THANKS
 I wish to thank all who helped to clean up and mow the cemeteries for the holiday weekend, everyone who trimmed around the graves,
 Walters Flower shop and Homer Walters who donated and planted flowers at the main gate, the American Legion for setting out flags around the military graves and the services for Memorial day, and all my friends and relatives who helped with mowing on Saturday to get ready because of the rain that fell all week; Neil McKown and Ed Phillips, who furnished the mowers and worked all day; my son, Kevin; Robert Berberick, James Holloman,
 Thomas Woodmansee, Gregory
 Burks, Walter Bland, who also worked all day trimming and mowing; James C. Root, Terry Root for keeping my equipment running and repaired and to some who seeded graves that I could not get to.
 Thank you

IF YOU DON'T READ THIS, YOU'D BETTER HOPE SOMEONE ELSE DOES.

Suppose someone sitting across from you at lunch was having a heart attack. Would you know what to do?

If you, or someone else, didn't act quickly, that person might die. And how can you act quickly, if you don't know what to do?

That's why the Red Cross offers CPR and First Aid courses that teach you what to do in an emergency.

Because one day someone's life may depend on the techniques the Red Cross can teach you now.

So call them. Because you never know when you'll be glad you did.
