THE University of Michigan is the scene of the Hopwood Literary Awards, the occasion for an annual invasion of the campus by hopeful publishers' representatives, waving contracts in one hand and bottles of Scotch in the other. Recently, however, pickings have been on the thin side, and the entries have become increasingly salty. Professor Warner Rice told me of the evening he found one of his instructors deeply engrossed in a book. Rice noted that the book was the Kinsey report on Sexual Behavior in the Human Male. "I didn't know you found that subject so fascinating," joshed Rice. The instructor explained, "It isn't that. I'm just tapering off from the Hopwood Awards."

The late W. C. Fields, not noted for sobriety, once was asked if he ever had suffered delirium tremens in Hollywood. "That's impossible to answer," rasped the comedian. "It's impossible to tell where D.T.s end and Hollywood begins."
