Foreword

It is with some misgiving that we present this, our maiden effort, for your perusal. We have made mistakes but we hope you will not be too harsh in your judgement.

¶ We have tried to make The Mayflower a true mirror of our school life, and we feel that in so doing we have done much not only among the students themselves, but among the citizens of the community as well.

A wide, light green decorative border with a repeating floral pattern surrounds the entire page.A rectangular frame made of grey blocks, enclosing the central text.

Class Will

We, the Senior Class of 1922, being of sound mind and healthy memory, do make and declare this our last will and testament, all others written before this being hereby revoked.

We do hereby bequeath our most valuable asset, our brains, to the Class of 1923, as we know that they will not accept them.

To the Juniors we also bequeath the valuable privilege of delivering orations before the High School.

Our angelic behavior we bequeath to the Freshies, upon condition that they promise to take good care of it.

The remainder of our possessions, including our good humor, we bequeath to the Sophomores.

I, Beatrice Kappenberg, do hereby bequeath my executive ability to Paul Shepherd.

I, Florence Hills, do bequeath my "pep" to Gertrude Beelman.

I, Beatrice Blosser, do bequeath my ability as a vamp to Gertrude Beeelman.

I, Beulah Blosser, do bequeath my dignity to Evelyn Aslakson.

I, Howell Frome, do bequeath my modesty to Helen Akers, also my blushing ability.

I, Edna Lofland, do bequeath my gift of gab to Josephine Willet.

I, Dorothy Hills, do bequeath my great memory to Marion Ruckman.

I, Lester Shields, do bequeath my surplus height to Coy Hough.

I, Beulah Rhine, do bequeath my mathematical ability to Chas. Blosser.

I, Velma Ross, do bequeath my sarcasm to Teddy Berberick.

I, Alice Lybarger, do bequeath my good looks to Handsome Shepherd.

I, Raymond Pugh, do bequeath my innocence to Elmer Parsel.

I, Donna Russel, do bequeath my sweetness and simplicity to Ina Stock.

I, Carl Ellis, do bequeath my oratorical ability to Robert McIntire.

I, Walter Dawson, do bequeath my choice vocabulary to Donna Hoak.

We hereby appoint Miss Barrett the executioner of this our last will and testament.

In witness whereof, we hereunto set our hand and seal in the afore-said village of Plymouth, county of Richland, state of Ohio, on this twenty-fifth day of May, A. D. Nineteen hundred twenty-two.

Signed and acknowledged by these witnesses:

EDNA KELLER
HELEN PRESTON
CAROLYNE BACHRACH.
SENIOR CLASS OF 1922.

Senior Class Prophecy

One morning as I was looking over my mail I came to an envelope which was post-marked Plymouth. With great eagerness I opened it and found an invitation to attend the reunion of the Class of 1922. I immediately planned my work so that I could leave the following morning.

As I was boarding the train I heard someone remark, "This isn't St. Patrick's Day." The voice sounded familiar and whom should I see but Raymond Pugh, now a traveling salesman for the "Linger Longer Lingerie Co.", of Chicago. I urged him to attend the reunion and he replied that he would make a great effort to be present. Then as I walked on into the chair car, someone touched me and said, "Why hello Beatsy", and to my astonishment I recognized Dot Hills now the dignified Professor of Latin from Vassar who was also on her way to Plymouth. We had a delightful visit together talking over old times, and the pranks of our younger days.

Upon our arrival at Plymouth, Dot and I took a taxi to the Ellis Hotel, managed by our former classmate Bill. Later we went out to give the old town the once over, and to visit the beautiful new school building. After returning to the hotel we met Beulah Rhine, the public health nurse, and Donna Russell, a reporter on the Dayton Tribune.

At dinner that evening we had the pleasure of sitting opposite the wife of the Russian Minister to the United States, Mrs. Ivanovitch Bowmanoff, formerly Miss Edna Lofland. Later, Miss Beatrice Blosser, teacher of Art in the Cleveland Art School and the prominent attorney Lester Shields arrived. With them came Dr. Walter Dawson, now of Shiloh. He informed us that Flo Hills, the latest sensation of the movie world, and her director Bub Frome had sent word that it was impossible for them to be present.

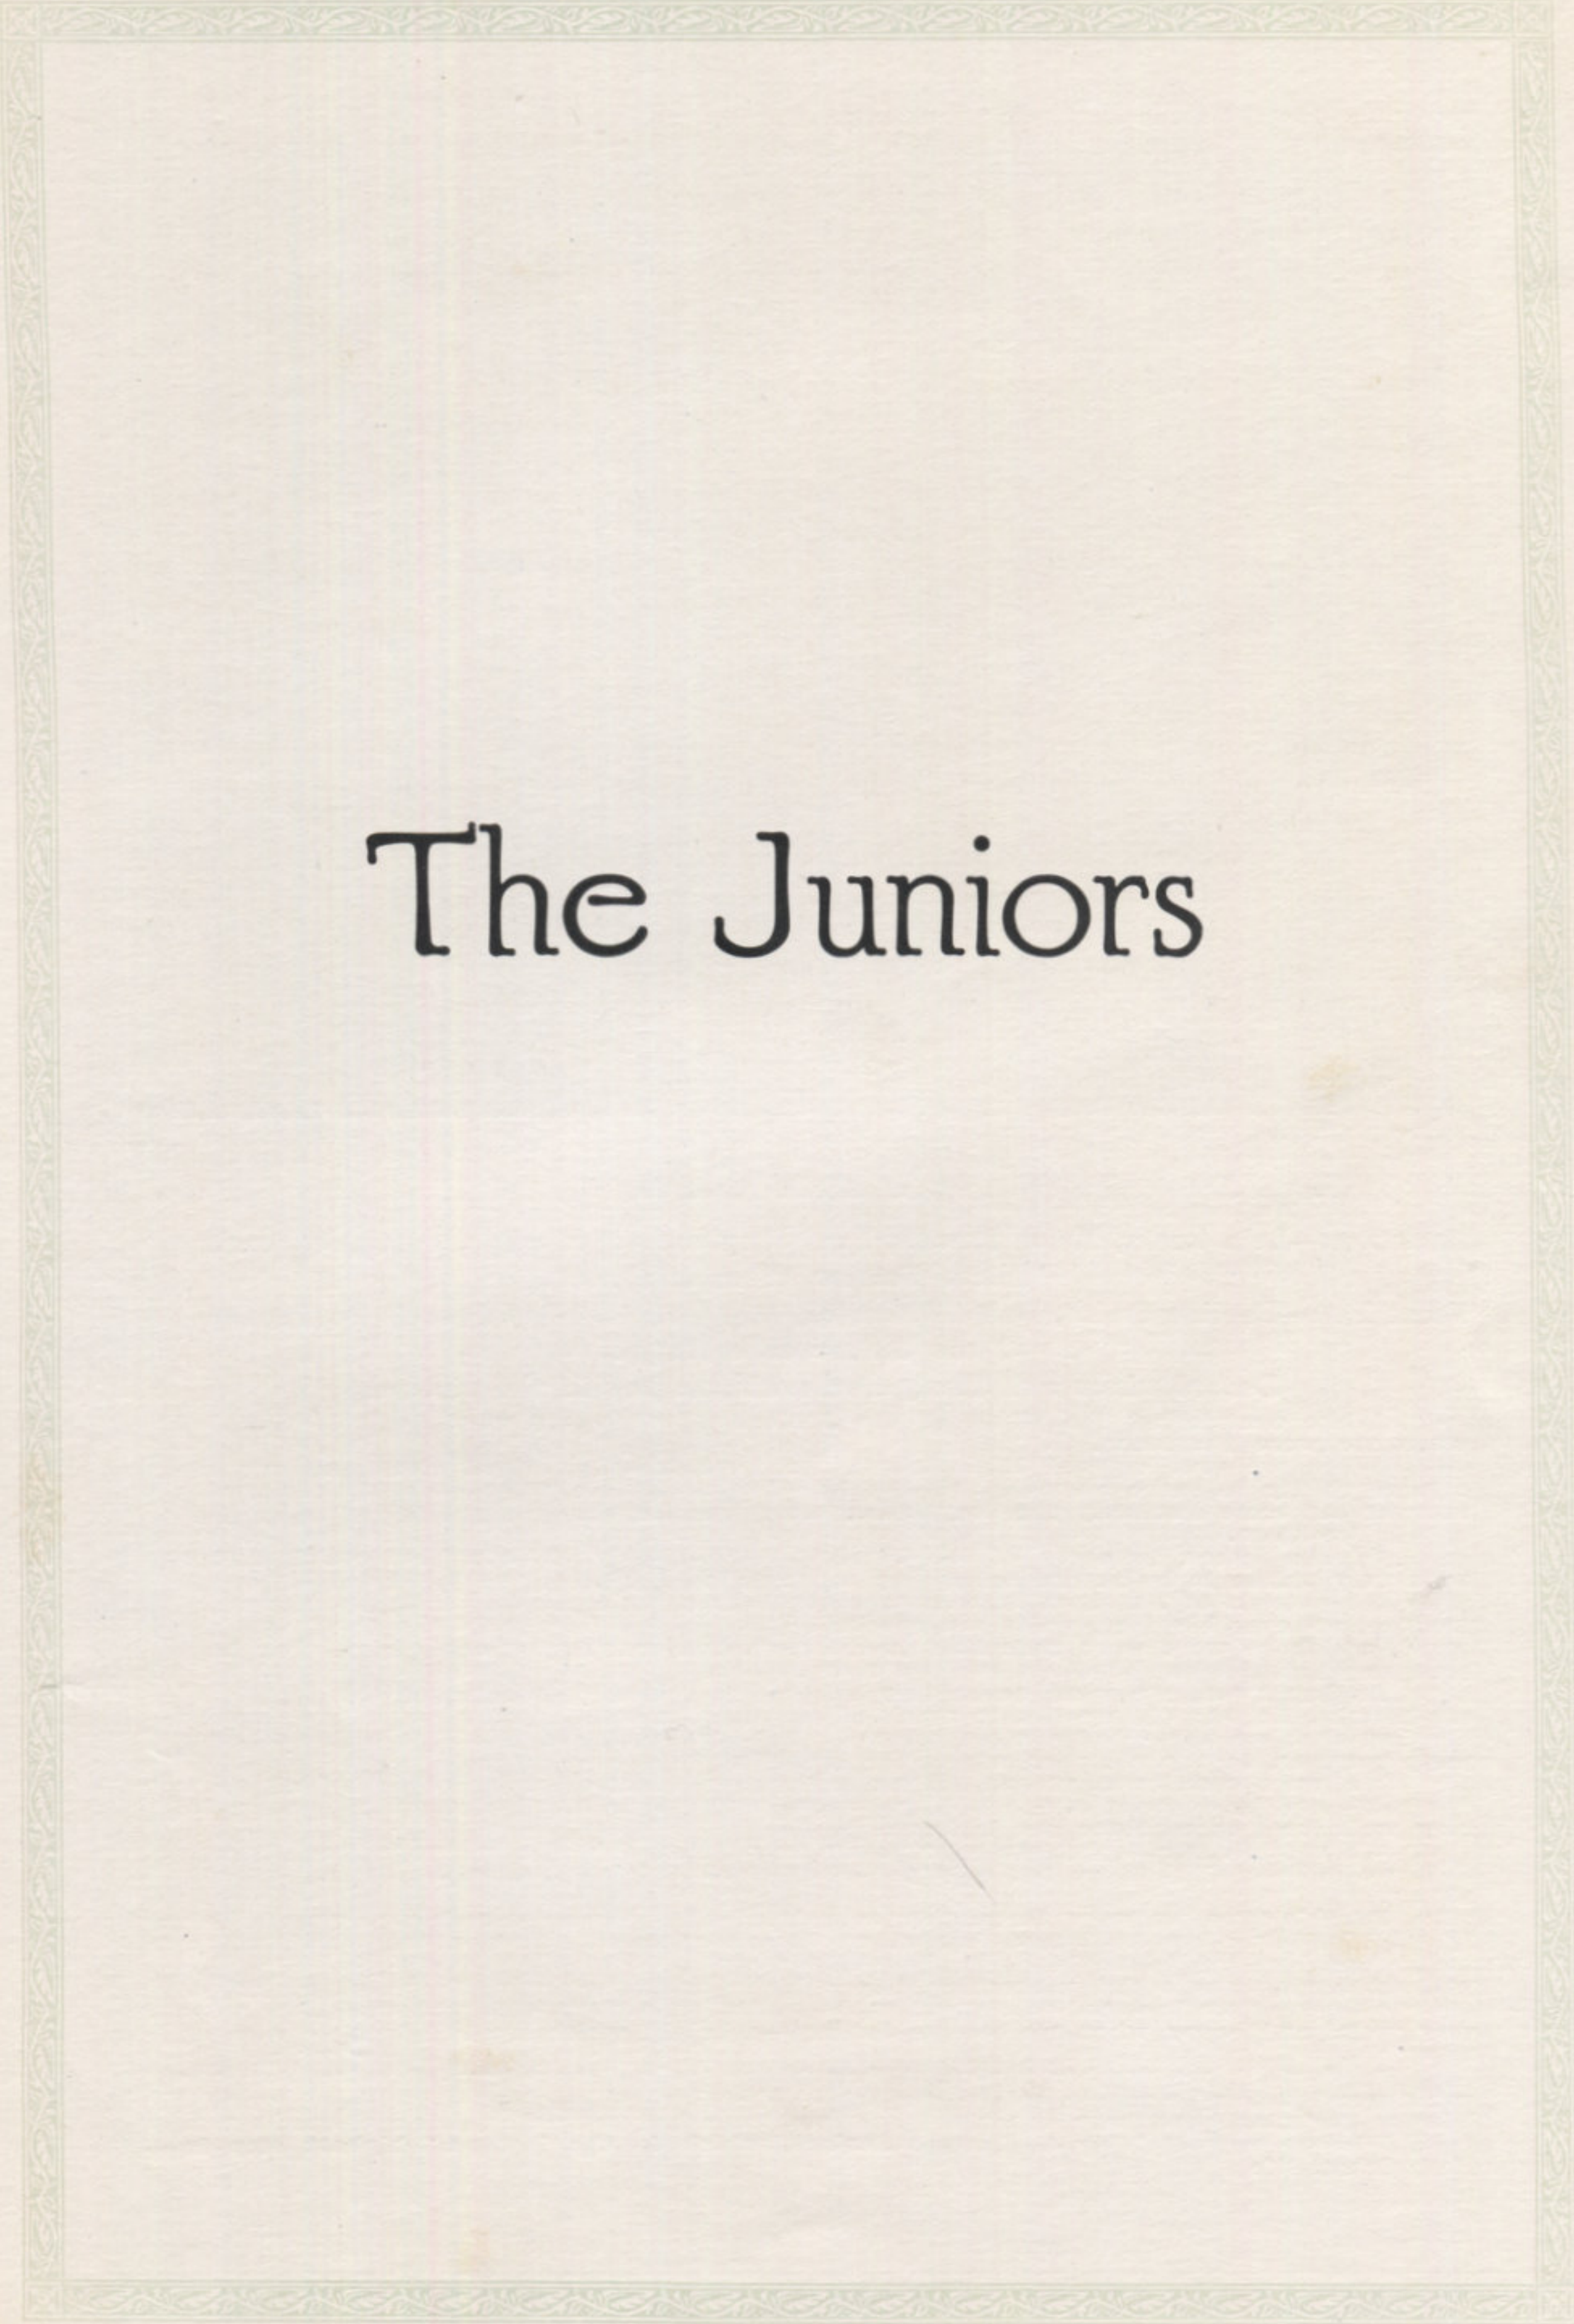

With the arrival of Beulah Blosser and Alice Lybarger, now the managers of an exclusive art and gift shop, all were accounted for, and we spent the remainder of the evening listening to the latest sketches written by the playwright Velma Ross.

It was indeed an event which we had often thought about in former years, and yet how different it really was. Some of those whom we had considered the least capable had reached higher goals in life than others of whom it was thought that they would set the world on fire. And yet after the elapse of several years, that spirit of devotion and loyalty to old Plymouth High still burns in our hearts and will continue to do so through the years.—Beatrice Kappenberg.

The Juniors

The Junior Class

Back Row—Lela Rooks, Helen Rowalt, Paul Shepherd (President), Gertrude Foraker, Marie Feters (Treasurer).

Front Row—Pauline Smith, Daisy Berberick, May Barber, Mary Fate (Vice President), Flora Snider (Secretary).

Donald Akers and Teddy Berberick are not in the picture.

While considering the virtue of the Juniors my thoughts went back to the time when we were Freshmen.

When we first entered High School, we were indeed a timid class and our unequaled ability to make blunders and get into the wrong recitation or study room, only brought out more distinctly the stupidity, the ignorance, and the greenness, so common to all Freshmen.

Of the fifteen members of the Freshman Class, only three were boys. But they were very unlike in looks, one being very tall and loose jointed, and fashioned somewhat after the pattern of Abraham Lincoln; another having little marks, commonly known as freckles, all over his face, while the special distinguishing feature of the third was the scowl, which he wore more than half of the time. But considering everything, they have been very faithful and studious and are now Juniors.

As Freshmen, we were never very mischievous, because we feared the results of our pranks. Neither did we devote much of our time to social activities as is shown by the fact that we never had a class party during our Freshman year. We took an active part, however, in the athletics which the school at that time afforded.

We were considered green, but nevertheless we learned a great deal, both from our books and by experience, and when we were promoted to the Sophomore year we were very well fitted to continue our training.

We entered our Sophomore year fewer in number, but not in importance. It was then we discovered that we not only possessed musical talent, but also wit and artistic ability.

By this time we were thoroughly acquainted with the rules and customs of High School life. Being less timid and fearful, we became quite mischievous. Our ability along social lines seemed to be lacking, though, for we went through our Sophomore year without having any social gatherings. The athletic spirit not only of our class, but of other classes as well seemed to die out entirely. We, as a class, did good work. We were very proud and happy when we became Juniors—a height which we had been very eager to attain.

As Juniors, we number twelve. Although our tasks have increased in number, we get a great deal of pleasure out of our school life. Our athletic spirit has been revived, literary societies have been organized and we have had several social gatherings this year. We are now striving to become Seniors, which is the last and highest step in High School life.

Sophomores
Freshmen

The Sophomore Class

Back Row—Elmer Parsel, Donna Hoak, Robert McIntire.

Middle Row—Ina Stock, Lucille Fenner, Josephine Willet, Isabel Ford, Eva England
Charles Blosser.

Front Row—Margaret Nimmons, Evelyn Aslakson, Gertrude Beelman
Marion Kappenberg.

Freshman Class

Back Row—Coy Hough, Edna Keller, Helen Preston, Wilbur Shields, Beatrice Reed
Floyd Sheely, Ruth Donnenwirth Glenn Hisey, Marion Ruckman.

Middle Row—Norman Aslakson, Ralph Schlectady, Caroline Bachrach, Mildred Weaver
Mardell Beamer, Velma Carson, Frances Rowalt, John Fate.

Front Row—Agnes Carson, Ruth Nimmons, Clarietta Sheely, Olga Aslakson, Elizabeth Sykes, Helen Akers.

Literary Societies

This year has seen a marked revival of interest in Literary work in the High School. At the beginning of the second semester two societies were organized to provide greater co-operation among the students and faculty, and to promote a spirit of rivalry.

"Clonian" and "Orythian" were the names chosen, while Teddy Berberick and Paul Shepherd were elected as the respective heads of these societies.

Since the formation of the two societies the general tone and character of the programs have been greatly improved.

The contest on the night of April 7th marked the climax of the literary activities of the year. This contest was based upon excellency in debate, short stories, recitations, and orations.

Girl's Glee Club

Under the inspiration and leadership of Mr. Davis, who was formerly the Leader of the Ohio Wesleyan University Glee Club, a chorus of twenty voices was organized after the Christmas Holidays.

The first public appearance of the Glee Club was on April 1st, when it sang for the Richland County Teachers Association at Mansfield.

It was the Glee Club which was largely responsible for the success of the show given at the Chamber of Commerce on the night of April 1st. Besides the numbers given by the entire Club, several specialties and songs given in costume afforded a program which was exceedingly novel and entertaining.

A decorative border in a light green color, featuring a repeating floral or vine-like pattern, frames the entire page.

Athletics

Back Row—Coach Davis, Coy Hough, Marion Ruckman, Walter Dawson
Norman Aslakson.

Front Row—Paul Hoak, Paul Shepherd, Howell Frome (Captain), Charles Blosser, Lester Shields.

At the beginning of the season Coach Perman had four letter men as a nucleus for his team. After breaking even in the first four games, Mr. T. S. Davis who had recently become a member of the faculty, assumed charge of athletics. The season was finished under his leadership.

During the latter part of the season the team was greatly handicapped by the illness of Captain Frome, and Shields, while Blosser received a twisted knee in the Willard game which disabled him for the rest of the season.

On the 24th of February, the Red and White participated in the Ohio State Basketball Tournament held under the auspices of the Ohio Wesleyan University at Delaware, Ohio. Although Plymouth went into the game as the favorite, Mt. Gilead would not be denied and won by a safe margin.

A careful study of the season's record reveals the havoc wrought by illness and injuries. This season marks the last appearance of Captain Frome, and shields, as wearers of the Red and White. They will be missed. However, with the return of Blosser, Hoak, Hough, Ruckman, Aslakson, Captain-elect Shepherd and the acquisition of Becker and Lofland to the squad, the prospects for a successful season next year seem very good.

Marion Kappenberg.

The opening of the 1921-1922 season found an abundance of material from which to select a team. Coach Davis built up a machine which would have accomplished much had it not been for the limited schedule.

Of the four games played, two were converted into victories. Both triumphs were made over Tiro. Likewise both defeats were administered by Willard.

Hills and Blosser, two of the best players that have ever performed for Plymouth High will be gone next year. However there are several promising players who will be eligible next season, and the outlook is good.

The following girls composed the first squad: Hills, Smith, Fate (Captain), Snider, Kappenberg, Beelman, Blosser and England.

Winner of Popularity Contest

MISS FLORA SNIDER

After surviving the elimination contest in her own class, Miss Flora Snider of the Class of 1923 won the distinction of being selected as the most popular girl of the Plymouth High School.

As the contest was based primarily upon scholarship, activity in school affairs, and in all-around ability, Miss Snider has reason to feel gratified by this indication of the esteem with which she is held.

NIMMONS & NIMMONS

Not only a hardware store, but a community center, where confidence and solicitude abide. A third of a century of activity and yet undiminished in favor or helpfulness

Like education, store building is a life process, and your effort ripens with the years.

YOU GET BACK MORE THAN YOU GIVE

EVERY TIME YOU SAVE A SUM OF MONEY

Lay it aside now in favor of what you can do with it later

You make a trade.

But it is not an even trade. You get back more than you put in! Suppose you're saving for your college education—or for a home of your own. Every deposit you make in a Peoples National Savings Account will remain safe until you need the money, and will earn 4% interest besides. Whatever your plans are, your savings and their earning power will help you to realize them.

Begin now to save by opening an account with
