Board of Education

Dedication

We wish to dedicate the annual of 1957 to two very nice teachers, Mr. James Nowakowski and Miss Estella Easterday, who have helped and worked with the students.

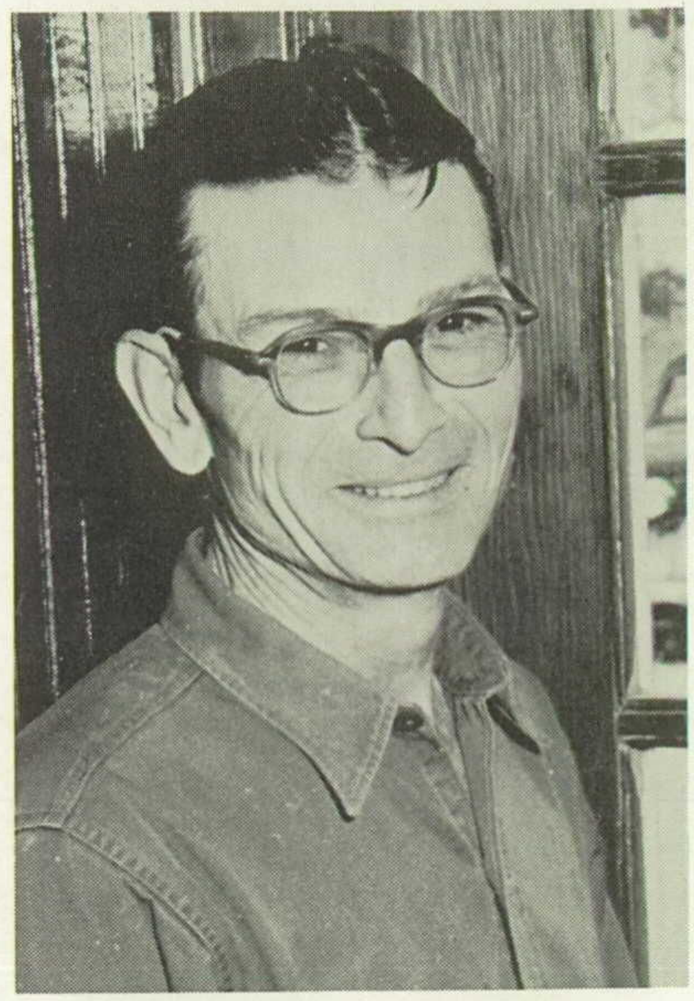

A graduate of Ashland College, Miss Easterday has helped us establish Student Council and College Club. She has also produced both of the class plays.

Although Mr. Nowakowski is 6'9" he has stooped to help us in our athletic department and other activities that have meant so much to the school. Last year he was class advisor to the junior class and this year he is class advisor to the senior class.

Student Council

Seniors

Senior Class

The senior class started off the year by electing the class officers who are: President, Jim Hunt; Vice-President, Joan Postema; Secretary, Pat Markley; and Treasurer, Pat Young.

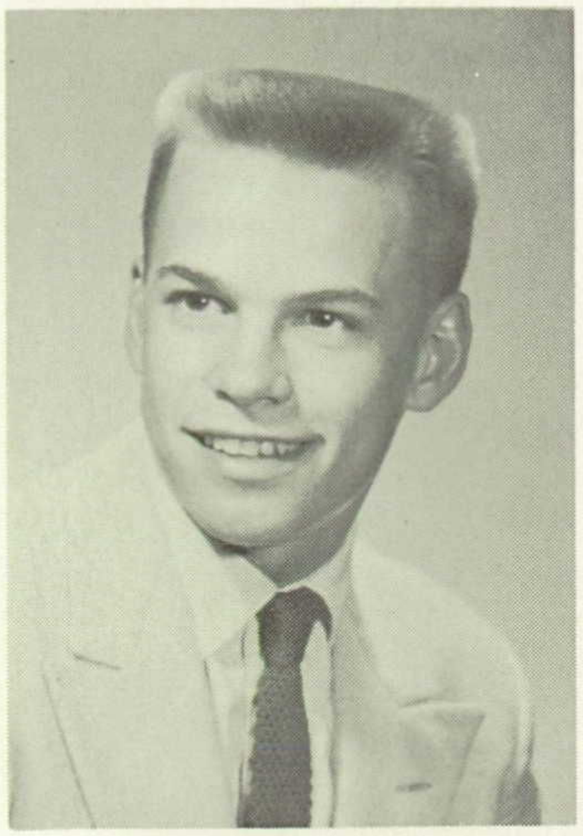

The Student Council members are Karen Buckingham, Herb Caudill, and Nida Stroup.

About the next thing we did was elect Pat Young to represent the senior class in the queen's court with Ellen McKown as the queen.

The class of '57 has done as much, if not more, than the rest of the classes that have graduated from PHS.

We have sold vanilla, Jello, Christmas cards, dish daisies, and toasters.

The class dance was March first, the name of the dance was "Lamb or Lion?"

Senior Class History

In 1945, we began our schooling in what is now the high school. Mrs. Harry started teaching us and Mrs. Port took her place in the middle of the year.

Mrs. McFadden took us under her wing our second year. The thing that stands out most is the stories with which we started each day.

Mrs. Major guided us through our third year. In addition to the reading, writing, arithmetic, spelling, and music we had language and geography that year.

In the fourth grade Mrs. Farrar had lots of games for us to play and called us in from recess with a "cow bell."

We started the fifth grade in a brand new building. This is the year Mrs. Ervin was our teacher and we put on the play "The Proud Princess." Also this year history and health were added to our list of subjects.

In the middle of the sixth grade we moved back to the high school. What a change! Under trying conditions Mrs. Anderson tried to teach us.

In the seventh grade we were somewhat bewildered, what with lockers and changing classes. Mr. Poling was our home room teacher that year.

By the time we entered the eighth grade things went along smoothly and time passed rapidly with Mr. Sarpa for a home room teacher.

In the ninth grade we had a chance to choose some of our subjects. That year we had Mrs. Idoine for a home room teacher.

By the time we were sophomores we knew our way around but our subjects were harder. Mr. Kreutzfeld had us for home room in the "old music room."

Next comes our junior year. Mr. Nowakowski was our home room teacher then. What fun that year, what with our play, "No More Homework" and the beautiful, exciting Junior-Senior Prom, "La Vie Paree."

We entered our senior year with much enthusiasm. We sold things in order to make enough money for our class trip. The senior play was "Stage Door" and our dance "Lamb or Lion" (because it was held on March 1st.) were high points of our senior year, but the class trip was the climax of the year.

Senior Class Prophecy

Since I am an adventurous sort of person I decided it's now or never! I cautiously approached the ticket office and purchased my ticket on the first flight to the moon.

Finally it was time for the take off. I made my way up the gangplank to board the mighty rocket and much to my surprise I bumped into two of my old classmates. They were Joan Postema and Lurma Risner, who were the stewardesses on this first flight. As I stood there chatting with Joan and Lurma I learned that the pilot was to be Jim Jacobs, better known to his classmates as Jake, and as his co-pilot, Charles Cobb.

As I boarded the rocket I bumped into four more of my classmates. They were Ellen McKown, Daher Huzovich, and Bettie Baker. They have become very rich and are taking this trip so as to be noted as the first society girls to fly to the moon. Chuck Kiess, who is a photographer for the World City Globe is along to take pictures of the girls after they land.

After the thrilling take off I had several more chats with my friends and found out about the rest of my class and what they have done with their lives.

John Elliott has become a great physicist and is now working on a new theory at Hollinburg Research Center.

Karen Buckingham, Pat Young and Nida Stroup have incorporated and started the Strougham Speciality Hospital. Karen is the chief of staff, Pat is the head pediatrician, and Nida is the world's greatest brain surgeon.

Frank Eckstein has completed his music study and now has his own orchestra with Jean Ann Cornell as his principle soloist.

Roberta Bachrach is the most famous actress on stage, screen and television. She has won several academy awards. The producer and writer of her plays and also her husband is Jim Hunt.

Jim Fidler is the owner of the famous Green Leaf Night Club located in the heart of New York City. His feature attraction is singer Trudy Green, better known to her classmates as Joanne Smith.

Herb Caudill is the world's most famous sports car driver and designer.

Sally Barbour is the world's leader in medals from Olympic Games.

Marge Curren has become a famous fashion designer in Paris and the model for her fashions is Joanne Briggs.

Reeda Slone is a missionary in South Africa. She is now working with the head hunters.

Shirley Myers starting at the low salary of $185.25 a week in a local factory has become the world's wealthiest woman. Now she can fulfill her dream of owning an Olds convertible.

Sandra Snyder has really come up from her job as library assistant, now she is head librarian at the Congressional Library in Washington.

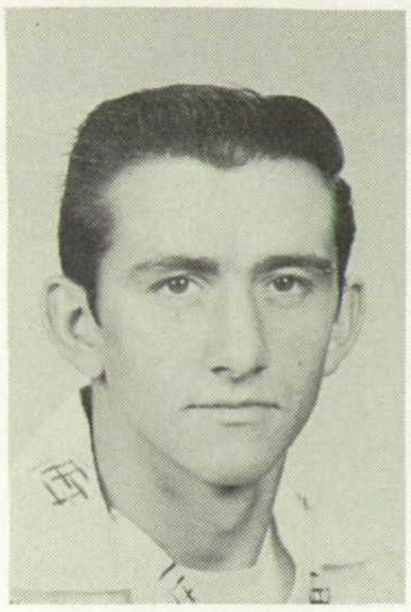

Pat Markley and Marcia McGregor have entered their chosen fields and have done very well. Pat is a grade school teacher and Marcia is a home ec. teacher.

Well, the rocket has just landed so into my space suit I go and onto the surface of the moon. See you when I return, I hope!

To earn money towards the class trip they held a turkey charity, a talent show, sponsored the dance, AUTUMN LEAVES, and sold concessions at the home basketball games.

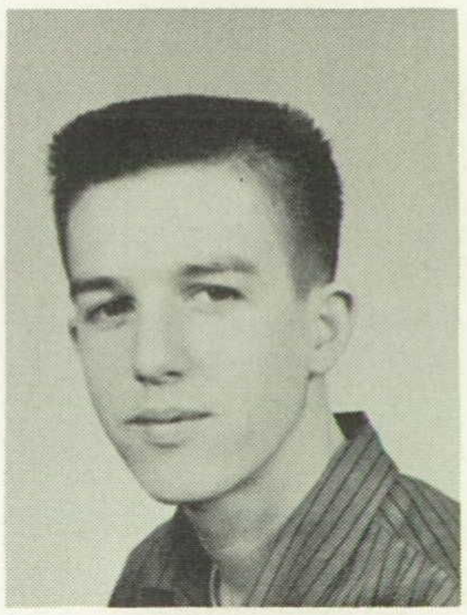

Shelby Reed represented the junior class in the Queen's Court.

The Senior Play

The Senior Class of 1957 presented "Stage Door," a three act comedy by Edna Ferber on November ninth and tenth.

The story revolved around Terry Randall, who lived in a girls' boarding house with several other struggling artists. The ups and downs and various love affairs make the play true to life.

It tells also of the great thrill the girls had when Jean Matiland went to Hollywood and made good.

Junior Class Play

The junior class presented the play "Professor, How Could You!" consisting of ten characters.

The play is built around a professor who very much dislikes modern women.

He was offered the job of dean, but he must be married within three days. Not caring for women he asked someone to choose a wife for him.

As you may have guessed everything becomes "mixed-up" and in the end he marries a stubborn, persistent, modern student of his.

Both of these plays were directed by Miss Easterday.

BAND

The band, both marching and concert, was quite active this year as usual. Consisting of fifty pieces, the marching band appeared at all but one of the games, including the preview here. The half time shows were varied in theme, ranging from "Hillbilly Hit Parade" to "Junior Joins the Band."

Immediately after marching season the concert band, consisting of fifty-five pieces, began rehearsals. Their first performance was at the December PTA meeting, where they played three Christmas selections.

Early in February the national champion Fostoria VFW Band made an appearance here. As is customary, the Plymouth Band played several selections preceding the VFW performance.

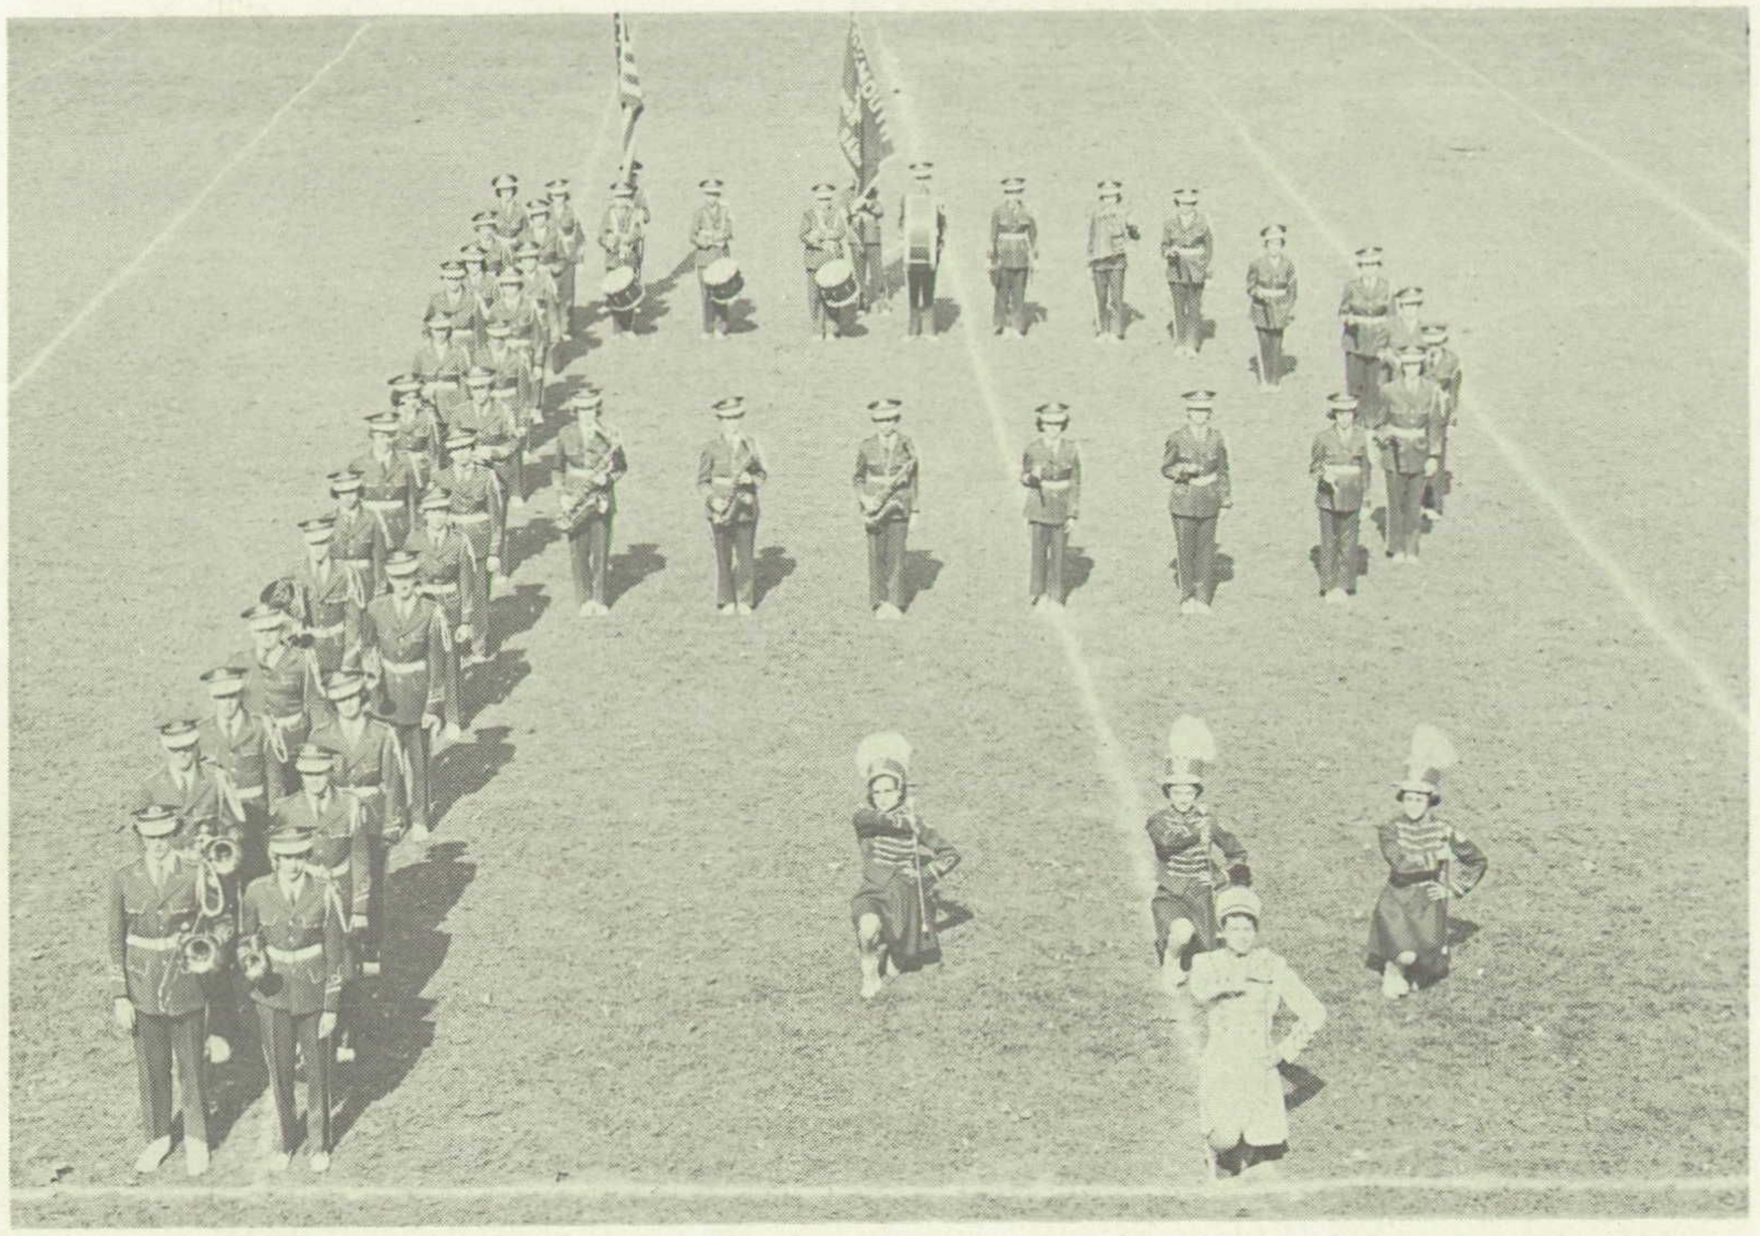

The concert band then started preparations for the District contest which they attended on March 23. Also, in April the annual spring concert was held, at which all high school members received their awards.

CHORUS

Due to schedule conflicts the chorus was forced to wait until football season was over to begin rehearsals. Their first appearance was at the December PTA meeting, where they sang several Christmas selections.

The chorus' next appearance was at the district contest, which they attended in March. They also sang at baccalaureate and commencement exercises.

Junior Senior Prom

Last year's exciting Junior-Senior Prom's theme was "La Vie Paree."

The gym was decorated like the streets of Paris with quaint little shops along each side. The shops were painted on large pieces of cardboard with the main color scheme being pink and gray.

The largest part was Chez Pierre's street cafe with cleverly decorated tables.

Doris Gooding's Orchestra played and the rest of the entertainment revolved around the French theme.

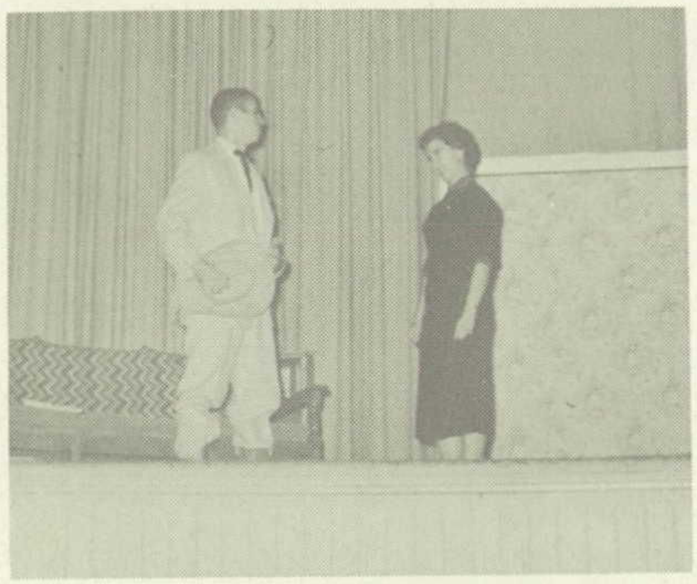

After the main part of the entertainment everyone was invited to go to the Plymouth Drive-In, after which breakfast was served at the high school.

Football Cheerleaders

This years football cheerleaders were: Daher Huzovich, Gary Levering, and Shelby Reed.

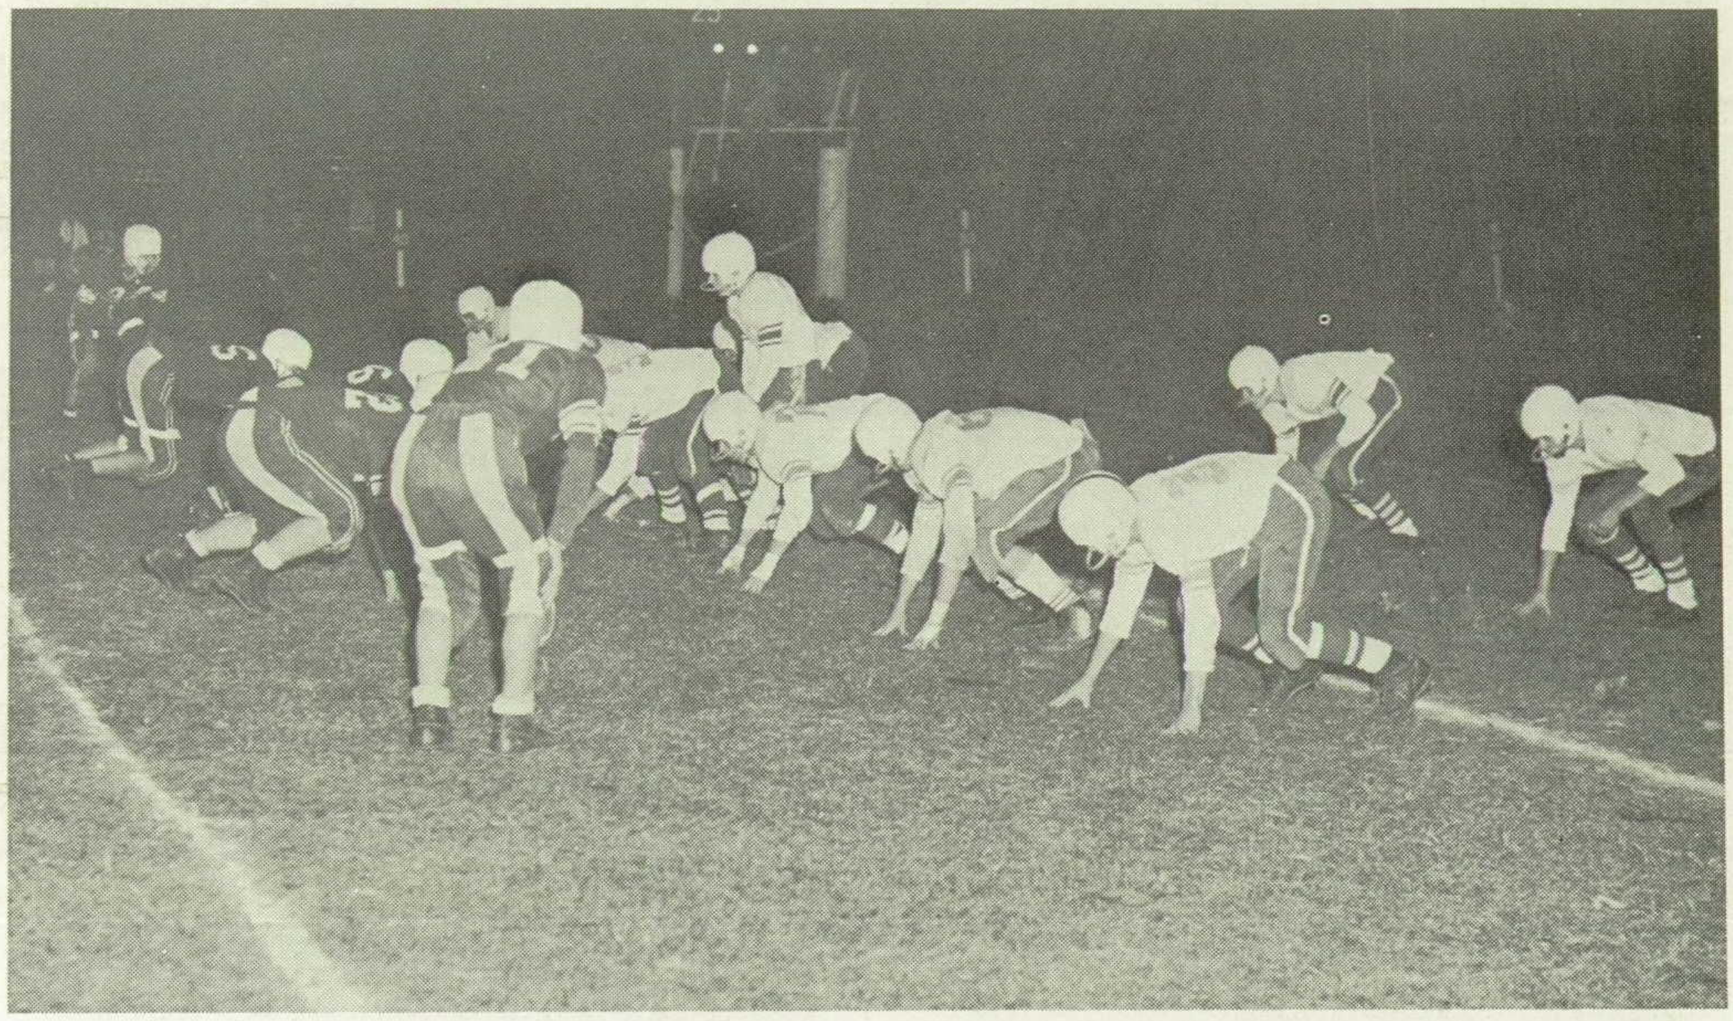

The Plymouth Pilgrims opened the 1956 football campaign with a resounding crash by rumbling Green Spring 45-0. The second game proved more of a rout, as the Pilgrims second team scored easily, tying the school scoring record, 49-0 over Ashland reserves.

The Pilgrims marched merrily along, mopping up Seville, 46-0. Already they were becoming known in area football circles. Point-a-minute dream team, unscored upon, untied, and unbeaten. A silver cloud soon to turn grey, victim of a determined Berlin Heights eleven. Losing their quarterback for slugging bogged down the offensive machine, and the Pilgrims were forced to play the last three quarters with their backs to the wall.

The rough weather over, the Pilgrims sailed to three straight conference wins and the League Championship in its first year of play. Lodi (42-0) Leroy (44-6) Wakeman (24-6).

The final game, the school scoring record fell as the second team scored at will over Jackson Burgoon, 62-0.

The Pilgrims broke many records. Undefeated, team scoring for a season and for a game, defensive team effort, single man scoring held by the great Ed Taylor, area scoring champ.
